WHY CHOOSE POLITICAL SCIENCE?

Political Science promotes the development of strong writing skills (an essential skill that workplaces increasingly demand); the ability to communicate clearly and persuasively; decision-making and problem-solving skills; an awareness and understanding of US and global issues; and leadership skills and the propensity for civic engagement.

The Political Science program at Rowan gives students a broad range of skills and knowledge that they can apply in a wide range of careers, giving them the flexibility they need to meet the demands of an ever-changing workplace. Our internship program also offers students real world experience with community organizing, issue advocacy, managing projects, collaborating on teams, conducting research, and analyzing data.

THE BOTTOM LINE

The number one element that sets Rowan apart is that our faculty members go the extra mile to ensure that students get the one-on-one assistance they need to achieve their goals. We keep our class sizes small so professors can develop personal relationships with all of our students, and know all students by name. Because we believe in a very hands-on approach to learning, we ensure that our students get the most out of their required internship, making sure they end up working in positions that provide professional preparation for their future careers.

POLITICAL SCIENCE QUICK FACTS

Matthew

“As a highschool student, I recognized my ability and love for exploring and dissecting political systems and processes. I want to help society on a macro level as opposed to a micro level. My Political Science major is preparing me to one day enter the world of politics and craft public policy.”

“A liberal arts education fosters valuable ‘soft skills’ like problem-solving, critical thinking and adaptability. Such skills are hard to quantify, and they don’t create clean pathways to high-paying first jobs. But they have long-run value in a wide variety of careers.” - New York Times
