WE ARE COAST SALISH
INDIGENEITY, SETTLER COLONIALISM, AND BORDER SECURITIZATION
By James M. Hundley

“James M. Hundley’s We are Coast Salish is both timely and timeless. It masterfully draws together the historical, political, and spiritual experiences of an Indigenous people whose traditional lands were bisected by the international border. From the days of raiding to migrant labor, to the summer war canoe races and winter dance ceremonies; the transborder experience of the Coast Salish underwent upheaval in the post-9/11 world. Hundley shows how the Coast Salish coped with this new reality by creating new renditions of tradition, such as the annual Canoe Journey, the emergence of a Coast Salish identity, and the transborder reaction to Desantel. This book will stand as an important contribution to Coast Salish studies.”

ABOUT THIS BOOK

Through immersive ethnographic research, We are Coast Salish: Indigeneity, Settler Colonialism, and Border Securitization explores the lives of the Coast Salish First Nations of the Pacific Northwest and the various ways they respond to the challenges of navigating the Canada/US border following the events of 9/11. Decades of securitization policies have led to cultural and political changes which entail the creation of a transnational political identity that is used to resist the negative effects of the Canada/US border on their lives. Through cultural revitalization projects, environmental activism, and transnational political maneuvering, this book argues the Coast Salish resist the artificial separation of their people by the international border.
